

Service King Collision Repair Centers Announces Executive Promotions

Brent McKinney and Dan Michaelis named to new executive positions

RICHARDSON, TX – August 12, 2013 – Service King Collision Repair Centers, a multi-state operator of high-quality collision repair facilities and the fastest growing U.S.-based collision repair company, announced today two executive promotions: Brent McKinney has been promoted to Executive Vice President of Operations and Dan Michaelis has been promoted to DFW Market Vice President.

“We are blessed with a talented and tenured leadership team, which is a differentiator for Service King,” said Chris Abraham, Chief Executive Officer for Service King. “As we continue to grow rapidly and identify new opportunities for expansion, we have taken great care to build the leadership infrastructure to support today’s needs and prepare Service King for the future.”

Both McKinney and Michaelis have long histories with Service King.

McKinney joined Service King in 2000 as a store manager and quickly moved up to a regional manager. He was then promoted to San Antonio Market Vice President in 2011 to oversee development in the new market. As Executive Vice President of Operations, McKinney will oversee all market vice presidents, lead new market integration and oversee market and company performance in all operational areas.

Michaelis joined Service King Accounting Department in 1990. He then moved on to become the Service Advisor and then Location Manager in Plano, Texas the largest Service King location at the time. In 2006, Michaelis was promoted to DFW Regional Manager before moving to Houston to assist in Service King’s first expansion outside the DFW market. As DFW Market Vice President, Michaelis will oversee the operational growth and development of Service King’s largest market.
